

To the love of my life

October 03, 2026

Dear Tanaaa (Bokeyaaa),

On this special Boyfriend's Day, I find myself reflecting on the incredible journey we've embarked on together over the past three years. It feels like just yesterday when we shared our first awkward yet beautiful kiss, a moment forever etched in my heart. That memory brings a smile to my face, reminding me of the beauty in imperfection and spontaneity.

I cherish every moment we've spent side by side, from those carefree walks home from school to the laughter-filled recesses where I would feed you with my hands as you truly transformed into a child-like version of yourself. Each of these memories reminds me of how precious our time together is, and how deeply we connect with each other's hearts.

One of the most special gifts you've ever given me was that handmade treasure, paired with your hoodie, which I wear with pride. Each time I put it on, I feel wrapped in your warmth and love. Your caring nature, your unconditional love, and your protective spirit make me feel safe and cherished in ways I can hardly express.

Your playful side never fails to brighten my day, especially when you make jokes about me. It's in those moments that I fall even more in love with you. You have this incredible gift of turning a simple moment into a joyous occasion, and I am so grateful for it.

As we continue to grow together, I dream of our future filled with endless adventures. I can picture us exploring the world, building our careers, creating a home filled with laughter and love, and one day, ultimately, tying the knot. Those dreams make my heart flutter with excitement at the thought of all the beautiful experiences that await us.

You make my world a better place, Tanaaa. I adore how you express your love in both big and small ways, from sweet words to gentle gestures. I truly feel loved and cherished in your presence, and for that, I am eternally grateful.

On this special day, I want you to know how deeply I appreciate you and everything you do for us. You are not just my boyfriend; you are my partner, my confidant, and my best friend. With you, my heart feels at home.

Happy Boyfriend's Day, my love! Here's to more memories, laughter, and the beautiful journey we have ahead. I love you more than words can ever convey.

I love you with all my heart.
